American Journal of Speech-Language Pathology

General Information

The American Speech-Language-Hearing Association publishes the American Journal of Speech-Language Pathology: A Journal of Clinical Practice; American Journal of Audiology: A Journal of Clinical Practice; Journal of Speech, Language, and Hearing Research; and Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in Schools.

The American Journal of Speech-Language Pathology: A Journal of Clinical Practice and the American Journal of Audiology: A Journal of Clinical Practice pertain to all aspects of clinical practice. Submissions may include such topics as screening, assessment, and treatment techniques; prevention; professional issues; supervision; and administration. Contributed manuscripts may take the form of clinical forums, clinical reviews, letters to the editor, and research reports that emphasize clinical practice.

The Journal of Speech, Language, and Hearing Research pertains broadly to studies of the processes and disorders of speech, hearing, and language, and to the diagnosis and treatment of such disorders. Contributed manuscripts may take any of these forms: reports of original research, including single-subject experiments; theoretical, tutorial, or review articles; research notes; and letters to the editor.

Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in Schools pertains to speech, hearing, and language services for children, particularly in schools. Contributed manuscripts may deal with all aspects of clinical services to children, including the nature, assessment, and remediation of speech, hearing, and language disorders; program organization, management, and supervision; and scholarly discussion of philosophical issues relating to school programming.

As publisher, the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association does not warrant or guarantee the accuracy, completeness, availability, merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or noninfringement of the content of this journal and disclaims responsibility for any damages arising out of its use. Description of or reference to products or publications, or inclusion of an advertisement in the journal, neither constitutes nor implies a guarantee, endorsement, or support of claims made of that product, publication, or service. In no event shall the publisher be liable for any indirect, special, incidental, punitive, or consequential damages, including but not limited to loss of data, business interruption, or loss of profits, arising out of the use of or the inability to use the journal content. The publisher reserves the right to reject advertisements and will not publish advertisements that are inconsistent with its professional standards.

Printed on acid-free paper effective with Vol. 9(1), 2000.

Information on Reprints, Permissions, Indexing

Unless otherwise noted, the publisher, which is the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA), holds the copyright to all materials published in its journals, whether in print or electronic form, both as a compilation and as individual articles. All journal content is subject to "fair use" provisions of U.S. or applicable international copyright laws (see <http://www.copyright.gov/title17/92chap1.html>).

Individuals and institutional subscribers may view, download, or save online journal content or they may photocopy or print copies for the purposes of research, teaching, and/or private study. Any use and/or copies of journal content, in whole or in part, must include a complete bibliographic citation and the ASHA copyright notice.

For permission to reprint or copy journal content for any other purpose, submit a request to permissions@asha.org. Permissions for coursepacks should be directed to Copyright Clearance Center (<http://www.copyright.com>). More detailed terms and conditions for use of ASHA journal content are available at <http://journals.asha.org/misc/terms.dtl>.
